

What will happen during your apprenticeship?

Learning from your Personal Tutor

You will have your own dedicated Personal Tutor who will support you through regularly assessments, coaching & mentoring, reviewing your knowledge, skills & behaviours and observing your work practices. This will be through remote, face-to-face & online support.

Thinking of new ideas & presenting them (subject to programme)

You will learn how to generate new ideas and gain the confidence to share them with your Line Manager and team. This will help build your capability and competence in your job role.

Innovation in learning

Online learning resources will be available to help you build a portfolio of learning. You will also be able to access an interactive learning environment (Bud) which easily captures evidence of your learning, embeds your goals, values and visions, has all the guidance and resources you will need and is accessible anytime and any place.

Working with your Manager

You will have a close working relationship with Line Manager, who will give you regular skills and progress reviews.

Learning by yourself

Sometimes you will be learning remotely and self-directing your own study and research. Gaining confidence by learning through your own through practical application on the job. Online resources such as Bud will be available to help record your progress and provide all the learning resources that you may need. Subject to programme, you may also be set project work.

Working in groups (subject to programme)

During your programme, there will be interactive, high-energy group work and peer-to-peer learning.
